10. [redacted] Bill Miller, Staff Director, Senate Special Committee on the Termination of the National Emergency, called concerning the Committee's request to agencies to identify those emergency statutes and powers which are obsolete and those which are still needed. I reviewed with Miller the fact that the Agency had been overlooked in the Committee's general solicitation of views but that we had contacted the Committee to obtain a copy of its request with the understanding that we would submit comments only if we had something substantive to say. I told Miller we had reviewed the appropriate material and had concluded we were in no way primarily or uniquely affected. Miller agreed that no further action was required by the Agency. He believes that legislation repealing obsolete emergency powers for the Executive Branch will be enacted by Congress this year which will contain a provision permitting the reinstatement of certain emergency powers with congressional acquiescence. Miller contended that there was no major contention between the Congress and the Executive Branch over this proposal even after I referred him to OMB's letter to the Committee which makes the point that the Committee was over reaching its bounds, but upon reflection said they may have problems from the Executive Branch concerning section 5(b) of the Trading with the Enemy Act and the President's power to call up reserves.

11. [redacted] In response to his query yesterday, referred Phil Stanford, in the office of Representative Les Aspin (D., Wis.), to the Nedzi Subcommittee and Frank Slatinshek, Chief Counsel, House Armed Services Committee, for any questions Aspin may have about possible Agency activities. Stanford was most understanding and said "they had good contacts in Nedzi's personal office."
